Magicians know that there are cards in a deck that cannot be revealed, when it comes to top secret scams. But very often, other players, even thought they know what cards are in the deck, fail to manipulate a trick. What is really astounding about a professional magician, is that he or she is able to show the working of their trick even after dozens of times, so that even spectators of all sides can see how a trick is done. So it is very easy to tell lies, but those who are not lying get information during the trick, without even having to make a bet on that. Another place where deception occurs is in the advertising world. In order to be successful, it is essential to attract attention. All advertising agencies know that an ad that is not convincing enough is not more successful than one who is convincing and can fool people for a long time. So there are a lot of advertisements which are specifically made in order to be more convincing. And among the tricks and tricks, there is one in particular in the advertising business. It is the publicity stunt, in which a local food product is "lost" during transport, and an advertising agency or a bus is hired to bring it back. The advertising agency prays that the advertising manager will check that the bus drives by the shop several times a day. After some time of a successful "tracking", the advertising agency finds what bus was used, and it is also quite easy to track its route. After this, the agency easily finds the place where the bus stops, and all they need to do is to catch the bus and take the product with them. And just to make sure that the product is real, the advertising agency promises the owner of the product that they will make a promotion after
